■ When a catalytic converter is installed due to a MIL or "check engine light" illumination, and the new converter fails to remedy the problem, it may be that the converter was not the cause of the problem originally. There are over 1,200 diagnostic codes which trigger the MIL or the "check engine light." Only eight (8) of those codes deal with the right and left converters operating below efficiency. Documentation from a trained mechanic indicating the code number designation, diagnostic details, and repair must be included with returned converter to obtain credit.
